25th Wedding Anniversary of Rev. and Mrs. D. H. Strong.

The celebration of the 25th anniversary of the marriage of Rev. and Mrs. D. H. Strong was very pleasantly carried out at the Congregational parsonage last Thursday evening. Intended, at first, to be a "surprise," it proved wholly and only to pastor Strong himself. There was a goodly number of guests and among them were Rev. and Mrs. Blomfield of Montpelier. Prayer was offered by Rev. Mr. Blomfield. A pretty little poem, prepared for the occasion by a niece of Mr. John Warner, was read by Miss Mary E. Waterman; and, in due time, Pastor Strong, H. D. Casey presented Rev. and Mrs. Strong, in behalf of friends, a gift of $40, more than $25 of which was in silver dollars. In receiving this gift, Rev. Mr. Strong spoke in his usual happy manner. Refreshments were served and all went merrily as a marriage bell till the hour for dispersing. Rev. Mr. Strong has now served our Congregational church acceptably for ten years, in which the tie that has bound pastor and people has grown stronger as the years have been passing. This item must not be completed till an effort is made to tell somewhat of the great and good work that has been done in this decade of years by Mrs. Strong, in the church and parish, as the minister's wife, a helpmeet indeed in the truest and highest sense, in the work to which her husband was called in the ministry here.

Morton Jofford is expected home from the Syracuse, N. Y., university the last of this month.

Mrs. Henry F. Erskine of Whittier, Cal., is thought to be nearing here, as her trunk has already arrived.

Major L. A. Abbott has just come here as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Granger. He was in Florida last winter, where for a few his health was seriously threatened.

The sexton of our village cemetery desires and insists that any and all refuse, such as old bouquets, now grass and the like, shall be dumped only at the back side of the cemetery.

Rev. W. Roberts, pastor of our Methodist church, will speak again next Sunday evening at the union service at his church, on the subject of "Profanity." There should be a large attendance on the occasion.

Near L. Smith, second son of Marcus A. Smith, has just arrived here from Trinidad, South America, for a vacation of some weeks. He has been in Trinidad for some twelve years, with an asphalt company in the States. He doesn't blow any horns as to his success, but it is calculated that he has made a fine success there. It is a great pleasure to learn from him of matters on that island, and it would seem that it offers some splendid inducements for the right kind of young men to go there. Mr. Smith's first greeting to us, on meeting him Friday morning, was: "How's the skating?" As he is only 10 degrees above the equator, it was a pertinent question—for him—though a little hard on his native heath.

Someone has just told us an incident in the life of the famous Green Mountain Morgan horse that was bought here a half-century ago or such a matter, at a cost of $2,000. Ex-Governor and Major General N. P. Banks of Massachusetts had at one time seen this horse, as rode on some great occasion, and as he himself was later wanting a horse to ride on such an occasion in Massachusetts, he decided to secure this particular horse, if possible. He was ready to pay $50 a day for the use of it, and expenses—$40 in this case of getting and returning the animal. The late Capt. Milton Martin had the care of the horse, and his son, Fred, who died in Barre not many years ago, was chosen to take the horse to General Banks. On the first trial, the general failed in his effort to ride him. The horse had no need of, nor use for, spurs, as the rider found; and he soon became tractable under wise management, and of course proved worthy of his Green Mountain name. It has been publicly said that this horse was finally buried here, but we are now told by Albert B. Martin that it was buried in Plainfield.
